Motion to Remand

For the reasons stated below, Plaintiffs’ Motion to Remand (Dkt. No. 1778) is GRANTED.

A. Background

Each of these cases was originally filed in California state court against Defendants Pfizer, Inc. (“Pfizer”) and McKesson Corp. (“McKesson”). Plaintiffs allege that Lipitor caused them to develop Type II diabetes and that, among other things, Defendants did not properly disclose the risks associated with Lipitor. Defendants removed these actions to federal district courts in California, asserting (1) diversity jurisdiction and (2) federal jurisdiction under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (CAFA). While complete diversity is lacking on the face of the Complaints, Pfizer contends that (a) McKesson was fraudulently joined and should be disregarded for the purposes of determining whether diversity jurisdiction exists and (b) that non-California Plaintiffs are fraudulently misjoined and that their claims should be severed.

After removal, these cases were transferred to this MDL by the JPML, and Plaintiffs' filed motions to remand. In addition to lack of subject matter jurisdiction, Plaintiffs also argue that the Court should remand the cases to California federal courts in accordance with CAFA.

B. Discussion

This Court has previously addressed all issues raised by these motions in CMO 87, Dkt. No. 1726. In CMO 87, the Court found that Defendant McKesson was not fraudulently joined as to the California Plaintiffs, that non-California Plaintiffs were not fraudulently misjoined, and that, therefore, the Court lacked diversity jurisdiction over the California actions at issue. (Id.). Because the only possible basis for federal jurisdiction was CAFA, the Court suggested to the JPML that the actions be remanded to their transferor court for further proceedings. (Id.)

The exact same issues are present here, and the parties submit substantially identical briefing on them. Indeed, Pfizer simply incorporates its prior briefing. (See Dkt. No. 1782). The Court finds no reason that CMO 87 should not apply to the actions at issue here. Therefore, the Court incorporates CMO 87 by reference and suggests that these cases be remanded to their transferor courts.

C. Conclusion

For the reasons stated above and in CMO 87, the Court GRANTS Plaintiffs' Motion to Remand (Dkt. No. 1778). The Court finds that it lacks diversity jurisdiction over these actions and that the only possible basis for federal jurisdiction is CAFA. Therefore, the Court SUGGESTS to the JPML that these actions be remanded to their transferor courts for further proceedings.
